A boy was watching his favorite TV show when the question came up, “Where do you live?” He didn’t know, so he asked his older sister. She replied, “You live in Austin, Texas.”

Later, the boy asked his mom the same question, to which she replied, “Honey, you live in the United States.”

He was a little confused. He thought, “How can I live in two places at the same time?”

Who was right? His sister or his mom? Explain your answer.
